March, 2016

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ;

The time has come, the calendar page has been turned and, we are immersed in Lent and shortly at Holy Week, The Three Days, and the celebration of the Resurrection of Our Lord, Easter. If the truth be known within each of us, the Resurrection is something we simply do not understand completely. We cannot understand why the God who created the universe, could not have found another way to reunite fallen humanity, another less painful, less public humiliating way to have the Savior, the Messiah, the Incarnate One bring salvation to the world. But, as good Christians, we proceed to mark off the days of the calendar, come to worship, and go through the traditions we have come to expect, know, and love regarding this most holy event.

When we read the account of the crucifixion from the gospel of John, we read that Jesus gave himself up on the cross, he was in control, from Pilot's hall to his death. He did not stumble, he carried his own cross, he did not cry out from the cross except to provide for his mother in a society that would have marginalized her.

Jesus was in control through it all. What have we to learn from this? Yes, we realize that our salvation has been effected for us, yes, we realize this is a God event, not ours to determine or decide. Jesus has much more to speak to us. Jesus teaches us from the time of the supper, the meal, how to love. Love is the operative word for him under harsh conditions from which we would no doubt run, or have much to say in condemnation.

Judas, the betrayer, was also treated with love. Judas for all of history since that time has been demonized and characterized as a most despicable character. The disciples did not see him that way, until the kiss of betrayal in the garden. Jesus did not treat him differently, even though Jesus alone knew of the deed to be done. Judas, you see, was one of the interior circle of Jesus most trusted friends. Even among the twelve, he was trusted with the money, he witnessed the miracles with Jesus, traveled everywhere with him, was taught by him with the love of God. How, could he have turned on Jesus? Why?

We do not know these answers. But we know this. Jesus knew and did not exclude him from the inner circle. Jesus knew and continued to teach him, love him. It was Judas for whom the love of Jesus was too much. Perhaps Judas had another agenda, disappointed by the life of love that Jesus taught. Perhaps Judas wanted for himself and for others the perks that come from hanging around with this man who was being identified as someone capable of exacting miracles and power. Perhaps Judas could not tolerate Jesus' love of all people, especially those who were considered low on the status meter. Perhaps..... any number of theories. In the end, it was Judas who decided to leave the group. He showed no advance warning, he just went quietly and made his deal. John's gospel tells us that Judas went out into the night, the darkness. Judas made the choice to go away from the light of Christ, the only light that can bring life into abundance, into the fullness of righteousness with God. Judas chose to leave.

We have much to learn from this passage before the Resurrection account. We have much to learn about our own human propensity for power, control, ego, sin. We have also much to learn about the infinite love of Christ, and that, finally, it is we who leave the room, excluding our own spirit from the light and love of Christ.

This time, the time of Lent into Holy Week, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, The Great Vigil, we have time to dwell on these things. We have time to meditate on the love of God in Christ, and also to meditate on the love of God in Christ for each individual. How shall we continue in our walk with Christ? What shall we say to the needs of our human spirit, mind, soul, and body?

May the God of Grace and Glory, be with you as you continue to walk with Christ in this most holy time of the year.

Blessings,

Rev. Dr. Lois D. Martin

A STEWARDSHIP MINUTE

Written by S. William Snover, MD
Financial Secretary

"What must I do to inherit eternal life?...Sell everything you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me."
(Luke 18: 18-22)

When this question was asked of Jesus by a person of means, the response of Jesus was direct and allowed little room for negotiation. Jesus was forcing the questioner to decide where his ultimate values lie. "No one can serve two masters...You cannot serve both God and money" (Matthew 6:21,25).

Trust me, Pine Street does not expect you to give up everything for the church. In fact, we don't ask you to give up anything. What your church and your God ask is that you decide where your values lie, and if you find that there is value in your faith, your spiritual and your religious life, that you dedicate time, talent, ability and treasure proportionately to maintaining and fulfilling those values.

Are you a disciple, a follower of Jesus, or just a spectator on the side of the road, watching the parade pass by? Will you join in, or get left behind? What are your values?

May God's blessings be upon you,

Bill

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Greetings and Peace to you in the name of the Lord Jesus! I am writing to thank you for your generous support and encouragement.

Your support, beyond helping with the day to day expenses, truly serves as an encouragement, reminding that there are those who believe in what we do in these hospitals and beyond. There are not enough words to thank you for that.

So I take this time to acknowledge and thank you for all of our 2015 contribution of $50.00 towards the work of Heart to Hand Ministries. It is only through the faithfulness of people like you that these ministries are able to continue and for that I give thanks to our Almighty God.

As Heart to Hand Ministries continue to provide song, support, prayer and encouragement to critically and chronically ill children and their families, never forget that you are a part of these ministries for our prayer is that others might be blessed through them in the same way that you have been blessing Heart to Hand. So let us go forward, together, as we give our hearts to God and our hands to man. To God be the glory!

In His Service,
Woody Wolfe
