Dear Sisters and Brothers
in Christ;

How's your faith? Actually, that is the title of a book I am reading by the author David Gregory who was for twenty years moderator of Meet the Press on NBC. That was not the only position he held in his career, but all of his career was as a political reporter including serving as chief White House correspondent. I first heard of his book through advanced publicity for his lecture at Susquehanna University on February 27, so I decided to read the book.

He seems to me as an unlikely person to ask the question, 'how's your faith', but then, why not, President George Bush asked him the question. Perhaps we should all be asking each other, 'how's your faith?' In these days when the trend in all churches is for regular attendance to mean once a month, I as a pastor need to ask, why? And if not regular attendance, then I too need to ask, seriously, 'how's your faith?'

I once heard this sage comment: it is easier to define your religion than to practice your faith. I apologize that I do not remember the source of that provoking statement. So, what about practicing our faith? As a Spiritual Director, I have done a lot of listening to others, usually regarding a sense of weakness of faith, a feeling that there is a distance between God and the one to whom I am listening, sometimes a confusion over what one is supposed to be doing in the relationship between the Triune God and the individual.

So what about this huge, yet sometimes elusive topic: faith. How does one get faith; how does one know when what one has is enough faith; how does one know if one's faith is right, healthy, good enough? These are all questions that can engage one's spirit, one's belief in Jesus our Christ, the Triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

As we make our way through the Season of Epiphany, the time of the Church Year from now until March 1, Ash Wednesday when we begin Lent, we will learn from the gospel readings each week about our Savior, Jesus the Christ. During the Sundays of February, the Gospel reading will continue to come from The Sermon on the Mount, from the book of Matthew. Jesus will be teaching us again what it means to be called as a disciple; to hear that we are salt and light and what that means; he will teach us again to love justice, that love displaces evil, that the law of God is a law of love, forgiveness, mercy. These are challenges for us as our culture raises issues everyday in the news, in entertainment, in conversations, that are counter to what we believe, and yes, our faith. As we walk through these Sundays, heading into Lent, I invite you to join us on Sunday mornings as we worship our God, and at fellowship time following worship where we have the opportunity to listen to each other, to be supported and to give support. And, on Wednesdays, we will have an opportunity to discuss our faith. This segment of our study through February will have the title: 'Table Talk'. In the fashion of Martin Luther's Table Talk, we will gather to have the opportunity to discuss how our faith is active, or inactive, in what is going on around us, and, how do we deal with that. Perhaps the question 'how's your faith', will not be asked openly, but will be answered during conversation. The question and invitation from the gospel of the Second Sunday of Epiphany from the gospel of John will give us that opportunity. Jesus asks: 'What are you looking for' ..... 'come and see.' (John 1. 29-42)

Blessings, Pastor Lois

Stewardship meditation for February '17

The church's need for financial support is as old as the church itself, and is referenced throughout the Bible. Last month we discussed a reading from Exodus regarding "first fruit" giving. This month I would ask you to read and reflect on Deuteronomy 26:1-11. The early Jews had been delivered from their Egyptian captors. They have entered their own land, which was fertile and could provide for their needs. They are then told that they must first remember the source of their new found abundance and to make an offering of their "first fruits" ... "that you, O Lord, have given me". (v.10).

Very few of us feel that we are wealthy, but all of us are blessed with creature comforts that most of the world can only dream about. We are indeed a blessed people, and the gratitude belongs to God. Can we, like the early Jews, "rejoice in all the good things the Lord your God has given to you and your household" (v.11) Can we joyously give of our time, our talent and ability, and our treasure out of gratitude, not out of obligation.

In March, a passage from Psalms.

Gratefully, Bill

A Visit with Emily ...

I've always enjoyed the Lenten evening services, but the evening Vespers (during Advent) this year were meaningful. This year they were especially peaceful, quiet and I could feel the peace. I'd look up at the altar, it isn't fancy, candles and up there, and at us, and seeing God's presences love the silence and see the know God's he's looking us. I feel with me. I and the candles, and we all sit up front, all bunched up, together, it was so meaningful, I could feel it. I come away feeling God present, calm, and peaceful. I think the older you get the more spiritual you become. I went to church when I was young, and you listened, but it's not the same, it's more meaningful now, I love that Church, I would never leave my church. Everybody is so friendly, we are so close, and everything is meaningful and better. I am so glad we had Vespers on Wednesdays, I feel comfortable and loved, and warm and I know God is with me. (Emily Curry has been a member of Pine Street Lutheran Church for many, many, years. She and her beloved husband Bill have been faithful to Christ and this Church. Their children came to Sunday school, came to Wednesday evening services while they were growing up, and sang in the choir. God Bless you, our dear Emily.)

This year they were especially peaceful, quiet and I could feel the peace.

Confirmation News:

The Confirmation Class participated in Vespers at The Basilica at Sts. Cyril and Methodius on Sunday, January 22. The service was in observation of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. We joined with other churches as we prayed that our identity as Christians would be bound in Christ and not in differences.

The Confirmands are planning a 'Retreat' for Friday, February 3rd. During the time they are together, until late that evening, they will play board games, have times of prayer and discussion, watch movies, and make Soup! The soup will be available for lunch after worship on Sunday, February 5 as part of fundraising for hunger on Super Bowl Sunday.
